Vogt Sociology Class Finishes UCS Study

The Sociology class under Phil Vogt has finished their study of East Omaha for the United Community Services. This was presented in booklet form at a tray luncheon last Tuesday.

Jack Mittelstadt, chairman of the background committee, presented the first printed history of the area which existed before Omaha. East Omaha was annexed by Omaha in January, 1957. The committee noted the average age is 22 compared to 29 in greater Omaha. Except for 6 per cent, the population is white natural born citizens.

Kenneth Ablett and his committee studied the efforts and effects of the voluntary agencies. They found a lack of community leadership and general social disorganization. The city maintains the only recreation program, that being connected with Pershing Elementary School.

"Pershing School has 650 students as reported by the education committee headed by Alfred Nielsen. The city took over the school in 1958 and since then attendance has increased. The city has brought the facilities up to modern standards and reduced the student-teacher ratio from 44:1 to 28:1. The committee noted the revival of an active P-T-A program.

Health and housing problems were displayed by the committee lead by William Lesell. They found that 11 per cent of the population are still using wells. Because of an inadequate sewer system, low ground level and poor drainage, water pollution is a problem. Most of the area didn't meet minimum health standards. The class observed rubbish in many yards and scattered about the area.

The housing ownership is equal to that in the rest of the city. However, the houses are "ramshackle, poorly constructed and in disrepair."

Edward Carlin and committee reported on the crime rate. It is 50 per cent higher than in greater Omaha. It was noted, however, that the crimes weren't committed in the area but by people giving East Omaha as their address.

Mr. Vogt said he was proud of the excellent job the class did. He felt it was a credit to them and a benefit to the committee.

Desperate Hours Crew Is Selected From 50 Students

A cast of 15 was selected Jan. 7, 8 and 9 for "The Desperate Hours," the second University Theater production of the school year.

About 50 students tried out for the play, written by Joseph Hayes.

Portraying Eleanor Hilliard is Merle Reiff; Ralphie Hilliard; Tom Aust; Dan Hilliard, Jerry Scheschy; Cindy Hilliard, Diane Hansen; Jesse Bard, Art Jepson; Harry Carson, Bob Crewdson; and Tom Winston, Bob Mundy.

Completing the cast are Dennis Norwood as Dutch, Duayne Thompson as Glenn Griffin, Gary Wallace as Hank Griffin, F. B. Nelson as Robish, John Culjat as Chuck Wright, Ernie Carriere as Mr. Patterson, Fred Crouter as Lt. Carl Fredericks and Betty Bechtel as Miss Swift.

"The Desperate Hours will be presented Feb. 14, 15 and 16 at 8:30 p.m. in the Administration Auditorium under the direction of Dr. Edwin Clark, professor of speech and director of the University Theater. Assistant director is Carol Abernathy.

Sixty-one Per Cent Of Students Work

A 21-year-old University of Omaha junior, Barbara Hall, lugging an arm load of books, stepped into the office of a local radio communications firm this week and slipped beneath a typewriter.

In the time of a 12 minute drive from the OU campus to downtown, the blonde coed changed her role from student to secretary.

She carries a 15 hour load at OU and works 15 hours a week in her Webster Street office. But a survey this week revealed Barbara's case is not uncommon.

Sixty-one per cent of the students at OU are holding down jobs.

According to figures from the Registrar's office, 1790 University students are engaged in the local labor market.

Of that number, 444 work 40 or more hours per week; the remainder are employed on a part-time basis.

The 1280 OU men who are employed average 29.5 hours a week on the job. Nearly 400 of the male students put in 40 or more hours per week on jobs. One hundred and eight of the total job-holding men students work an average of 18 hours a week on campus.

Four-hundred women hold off-campus jobs averaging 22 hours per week. The average for the 106 women students who work on campus is 15 hours per week. Fifty-nine OU coeds work 40 or more hours per week at off-campus jobs.

Average pay for the part-time employed students varies from $1.00 to $2.50 per hour.

"I don't know 10 people on this whole campus who don't hold down a job somewhere," noted laboring student Art Stevens.

Parking Is No Problem Now

"There seems to be no parking problem on the campus now," said Dean of Administration Kirk Naylor.

Students can arrive on campus at any time of the day and find an empty parking stall in a metered lot.

The free parking lots are usually filled by 7 a.m. by students with 7:30 classes.

There are always several empty rows of parking in the Applied Arts lot, Naylor emphasized.

"Parking meters have been on the University of Omaha campus since 1955," Naylor added.

The Board of Regents and the University administration decided that the meters would be installed on paved lots to pay the expenses of maintenance.

The five cent an hour parking fee is very reasonable compared to what other universities charge, Naylor said.

According to a research report by the University Facilities Research Center, the University of Indiana charges 10 cents an hour to park. The University of California charges a 50 dollar per year parking fee plus 50 cents per day for parking.

Many universities charge from one to five dollars to register the car so it can be parked on campus.

Classic Guitarist To Present Recital

Rey de la Torre, one of the world's foremost classical guitarists, will present a recital for C.A.E. students the evening of February 17. The program will take place in the C.A.E. auditorium.

Rey de la Torre is known to American audiences through his recital and concerto appearances, guest spots on the "Today Show" and "Jack Paar Show," and recordings on Epic records.

Rey de la Torre

He was born in Havana and studied in Spain, where he made a name for himself at 16. His program at Omaha University will consist of such selections as "Sarabande," "Bourree" by J. S. Bach and a group of selections by the composer Villa-Lobos.

While primarily for College of Adult Education students, the Rey de la Torre concert will also be made available to day students, according to Dr. Donald Z. Woods, dean of the C.A.E. Advisor for the musical event is Dr. James Peterson, head of the music department.

Admin. to Deal With Library Roof Problem

A meeting was to be held with the architects and university officials this week to decide what action will be taken on the library roof bond, according to Clarence Lefler, head of buildings and grounds.

In a letter to Dean of Administration, Kirk Naylor, the Barrett Division of Allied Chemical Company stated that the leaks in the library roof are due to normal wear and are not covered by the roof bond.

The roofing material was guaranteed against defects in materials and workmanship for 20 years by the manufacturer, Barrett Division of Allied Chemical Company.

Normal wear and tear is covered by the bond according to Lefler.

The library roof was lead by the Shea Roofing Company in 1955 according to the manufacturer's specifications.

Some new minor leaks were repaired by the buildings and grounds staff during the Christmas vacation, said Dean Naylor.

According to Naylor the university has had trouble with leaks in the library roof since 1958.

Stan Zwerling and Marilyn Hunter won first and second place trophies Wednesday in the After-Dinner Speaking contest. Stan captured first place with a humorous speech about the Russian Government. Runner-up medals were awarded to the three other finalists, John Herbert, George Miller, and Joseph Schik. The five finalists were chosen from a field of 24 contestants, by a series of preliminary contests. The contestants were judged on their ability to meet the audience, their delivery, choice and arrangement of ideas, and humor. Judges for the contest were: Dr. Gale Oleson, Dr. Walter Beaupre, William Gerbracht, Steve Bell from WOW-TV and Galen Lilienthrop from KMTV.

An Editor's Feelings

By ARLO GRAFTON

You know, I have finally found out why I am such a lucky guy. It's not the prestige, it's not the fame, it's the people that I have been so lucky to be associated with this semester as the editor of the GATEWAY.

The GATEWAY office (you know, that little office in the Applied Arts Building at the end of the hall), well that's where we put the paper and the yearbook together.

To me this little room has more personality than any other room on campus. Why? Well there are many reasons.

For one, everyone has one thing in common—that of getting the publications (the GATEWAY and the TOMAHAWK) out to you.

Here is a group of people that have a deadline to make and it has to be made.

They work their tails off to meet this deadline so that you can enjoy these publications.

There is a tremendous sense of accomplishment that goes into being a journalism major. There are headaches, of course, but somehow these headaches just seem to take a back seat. Sure they complain, they're only human, but they still manage to maintain enough composure to realize that there is a job to be done—and they get that job done (eventually).

Here is a group of people that can sit down when it seems like there is no end in sight, but they always finish.

I can't help but have a tremendous feeling for these people and what they stand for. They do a great job with a minimum of gripes that ultimately turn to smiles when they finally see the finished product in print.

Without these people, I feel that there would have been a void as far as my college career goes.

College for me would have been just one daily routine after another without any sense of accomplishment.

Through these people I have gained a real dedication to this University—the kind that most students never have.

Letter to the Editor

For four years it has been my good fortune to be a part of the "mainspring" of this campus... the fraternity system. Amid the sensational headlines and rumblings of anti-Greeks, the fraternity system has continued to increase its numbers. Many of the articles written in protest of the Greek system have found themselves woefully lacking in one important respect: their authors neither were nor are members of the institution they so vehemently oppose.

These same authors invariably leave unanswered what I consider to be the most important questions "on the other side of the ledger." For example, does it necessarily follow that because Podunk University Greeks have attained notoriety through juvenile practices that this applies to all such organizations? Is there a man-made institution in the world which is completely free of imperfection? Why, if the Greek System is so deplorable, have fraternities and sororities continued to grow at a phenomenal rate? (statistics will be supplied upon request) Is it possible they serve a really worthwhile purpose? Assuming the validity of criticism leveled at individuals in Greek organizations, is the whole apperant rotten?

On our campus a brief survey of Greek accomplishments best expresses what most fraternity men feel. ODK and Waokiya (male and female leadership honoraries) are Greek-dominated, as are nearly all other formal organizations here at OU. Who supports wholeheartedly the Blood Drive, Community Chest, Athletic events, elections, and class functions? (Bootstrappers and ISA are important exceptions to the rule) How many of our "8 to 5" students expend the effort necessary to attend convocations, Homecoming, Mai-ie Day, and the Student Council Christmas Party? It's argued that the Greek system prevents real scholastic excellence with its emphasis on the social aspects of college life. Unfortunately, statistics disagree with this view. For example, last year the all men's average at OU was 2.196, and the all-fraternity average was 2.333. The all-women's average was 2.6512, the all-sorority average was 2.80. The all-school average was 2.3129... lower than either the all-fraternity or all-sorority average.

I'm a fraternity man. I'm proud of that fact.

Sigma Phi Epsilon Fraternity

O.U. Rifle Team Whips Packers For Fifth Victory

The OU Rifle Team opened the second half competition in the Intercity Rifle League with a victory over the Packers Rifle and Pistol team last Thursday night.

Team coach Richard Grim was the high scorer for OU in the 1888-1864 victory. He fired a total of 383 points out of a possible 400.

"The score of 1888 is our high for the season," said sergeant Grim, "and we should equal or better that score in our remaining matches."

The rifle team brought a 5-2 record into its match with the Carson-Oakland Rifle Club Wednesday night. Results were not available at press time.

Results in the match fired last Thursday:

Air Force Vet Salutes Young ROTC Cadets

George Smallwood Salutes

By Dick Fletcher

What's it like to say, "Yes, Sir. No, Sir." to AFROTC cadets who are three to four years younger than you are?

"I don't mind it," says George Smallwood, "it's military courtesy."

George E. Smallwood III is a 23-year-old service veteran who is a freshman in the Business Administration College and is enrolled in AFROTC at Omaha University.

George is a basic cadet and is the Cadet Sergeant Major for the 472nd Cadet Group.

He enlisted in the Air Force just after completing high school in his home town of Houlton, Maine. After completing boot camp and personnel school at Lackland AFB, Texas, George finished his four years of service at Offutt AFB in Personnel.

George applied for Officers Candidate School in 1961. After passing the written and physical exams, he was scheduled to enter OCS in January of this year. But when Congress cut down the number of men entering OCS from about 350 to 80, he didn't get in.

After this, George was debating whether or not to continue in the Air Force. He then talked with Lieutenant Robert P. Everett who he knew at Offutt.

Lieutenant Everett is a 1961 graduate of Omaha University and gained his commission through AFROTC after serving in the Air Force as an enlisted man.

"I talked to Mr. Everett several times just before getting my discharge this summer," George said, "and he advised me to come out to OU and enroll in the AFROTC program to get my commission."

Professor of Air Science, Shirl H. Swenson, waived Air Science I and George is now in Air Science II.

"I will have to drop out of ROTC for a semester or a year before I start the advanced program," George said, "because this way I only have to take one year of basic AFROTC."

George, who was an Airman First Class while at Offutt, received a spot promotion to Cadet Staff Sergeant in view of his previous military service.

George has been married about a year and a half and met his wife at Offutt while she was in the WAF.

After he graduates and is commissioned, George hopes to get back into Personnel and make a career of the Air Force.

Sayers May Have Help This Year As Indoor Track Season Nears

Rocket Roger Sayers is expected to carry most of the load again as the OU 1963 indoor track campaign nears, but newcomers may take some of the weight off the little sprinter's shoulders.

The most heralded of the rookies is freshman, Terry Williams, who, along with Roger, gives OU the fastest sprint duo in OU history. Williams set the state high school 100 yard dash record at Central high, Roger's former high school.

Nine other newcomers give Coach Lloyd Cardwell more depth than a year ago. A first year sophomore, Jim Mone, will try his hand at the distances. The rest are freshmen.

Mel Wade and Joe Johnson, half of Omaha Central's state championship mile relay team, are looking forward to the opening meet, February 8, with Doane and Hastings in the OU Fieldhouse. Johnson will concentrate on the middle distances, while Wade will run the sprints.

Ed Neel and Clyde Ketelson will bolster the hurdle department. Ketelson is also a broad-jumper. Joining these two is another frosh who has already made his mark at OU. Gerald Allen, number 44 in an Indian football uniform, will also be hurdling the barricades. Robert Duncan and Mike Beveridge are middle distance men, with Beveridge contributing to the sprints also.

The other freshman on the roster at this time is Robert Chrisman, a shot putter.

Another shot man that Cardwell is looking forward to is Jim Jones. Jim, also a freshman, should be out for practice when he turns in his heavy-weight wrestling togs. The final planned-on freshman is Jon Lloyd, who is currently the Indians' basketball leader. He's a high jumper.

The veteran high jumper, Dave Hagglund, hasn't checked out equipment yet.

Bruce Hunter, hurdles and broad jump, completes the list of other sport-men who will report late. Hunter, like Lloyd is a basketball player.

Of the other veterans returning, Lloyd Cardwell Jr., Loren Drum, Jim Freelin, Ray Hultman and Herb Rhodes are holding down middle distance spots.

Senior Gene Somer, who can run all day, is the only distance runner with any college experience.

Warren Lenz and John Krogh are two returning shotputters, and Gerry Richardson, the top pole vaulter, is going to give it another try.

But the cream of the crop is still that jackrabbit Sayers. The top point-getter the past two years, Roger is only a junior, and he continues to improve.

Coach Cardwell feels that the roster is by no means complete. He and assistant coach, Don Watchorn, who has been working with the distance men, urge anyone interested in track to come in and talk with them.

Practices are being held from 3:00 to 5:00 p.m. in the Fieldhouse.

Top Cage Season Since 1957 Assured Against Washburn

by Mike Moran

Omaha U's fabulous footballers set a lot of records this year, but now their rivals from the basketball court have set one too.

That record happens to be the winningest season since 1957 and the campaign is only one half over with the OU mark at 6-7.

The game that did it was a come from behind, 50-41 upset over Washburn at the Fieldhouse last Saturday night.

Jim Borsheim's hustling Indians were down at the half, 34-32 but came out with a dogged defense and hot shooting the second half to whip the Ichabods who the week before had knocked off both defending CIC champ Fort Hays and Pittsburg State.

The Indians hit for 10 straight points and before the startled Kansans had recovered, the Omahans had a 42-34 lead that never melted.

Veteran Joe Neuberger came off the bench with eleven minutes to go and ignited the spark with two quick field goals.

Rapidly improving Ed Woodward delivered probably his best performance to date with a strong rebounding effort the second half to keep the Ichabods at bay.

Jon Lloyd paced the attack with 23 points and a fine floor game. Lloyd had to hold his own, along with Woodward, against a Washburn front line that averaged 6'6."

OU's stay at the .500 level was short lived as the Indians dropped a hard fought 88-78 tussle to conference leader Pittsburg State at Pittsburg Monday night.

The game was close all the way and Pittsburg led at the half, 42-38. OU's Jon Lloyd got into early foul trouble and was benched before intermission with four infractions. Lloyd came off the bench with eleven minutes to go and put on one of the finer offensive shows in CIC history, scoring 20 points in the short time left.

Lloyd's heroics went for naught however as the Indians were unable to beat fouls and rebounding trouble.

OU is idle until February 4 when they return from semester break with a home encounter with Emporia State.

Top Basketball, Lloyd, Thinks Dorms Will Help in Recruiting

by Ken McEwen

"Over 500 per cent" is the optimistic prediction of an OU basketball player who may be one of the main reasons behind the prediction coming true.

Jon Lloyd sees in the OU high single game with 26 points, point average with 14.3 points per game out of 177 points for eleven games. His rebounding is second to Larry Villnow and his free throw average is .818 percent.

Lloyd has found OU people a lot easier to meet, which is one of the reasons he left his full-scholarship at Nebraska to come here as a second semester freshman. Coming from Newark, New Jersey, originally, he has been influential in persuading fellow Newark boys Charlie and Jim Meyers to come to OU.

At Central High in Newark Jon played basketball, baseball and track. He earned three letters in each sport and received all-state honors two years in basketball. In the Air Force for four years, he high jumped 6 feet 6 inches. The 23 year old is undecided as to whether he will go out for baseball or track in the spring.

Jon feels that the Athletic staff could improve their recruiting if they could furnish some sort of housing for out-state athletes. He said that the first question that any of the guys in New Jersey ask, when he talked to them about OU is "how are the dorms?" He feels the answer should be, "real good" instead of "they don't have any."

squad, "a lot of individual talent that needs to be blended a little more before an extremely successful season will be possible." Jon, a 6 foot 2 inch transfer from Nebraska University is leading the team in eight areas of scoring. He leads the
